

Lauren Lotko

Senior Associate

Areas of Focus:

- Intelligence systems and cyber security
- Strategic advice on mergers and acquisitions
- International homeland security

Previous Government and Financial Sector Experience:

- Intelligence Officer, U.S. Navy Reserve (2008-Present)
- Equity Research Associate, BayStreet Research (2006-2009)

With a background in equity research and demonstrated commitment to improving national security, Ms. Lotko brings the knowledge and capabilities to enhance our clients' ability to do well financially, while doing good for the public. Before joining The Chertoff Group, Ms. Lotko worked as an equity research associate at BayStreet Research providing quantitatively driven analysis on the wireless communications and video games sectors to assist institutional clients in their investment making decisions and to enable industry clients to improve their business performance. In 2008, she received her commission as a Reserve Intelligence Officer in the United States Navy, where she continues to serve.

At The Chertoff Group, Ms. Lotko provides information security and risk management advice to U.S. and international organizations, business development solutions for clients seeking to grow in commercial and federal channels, and mergers and acquisitions advisory services to companies with a broad array of capabilities in the homeland defense and national security sectors.

Ms. Lotko received her M.A. from Georgetown University's Security Studies Program and B.A. from Dartmouth College.